Washington crossed the Delaware, 1776, and broke up the Hessians' Christmas celebration at Trenton. Quite a contrast to the way President Wilson is spending Christmas.

Luke McLuke says: "The man who throws the Fly Swatters away just because frost has set in, is in the same fix as the man who gets rid of the Baby Buggy just because the first baby can walk."

The beginning of the New Year comes this week too, the day for "good resolutions" and it will also usher in another time-honored inspiration for jokes, the "loop-year," and all of the eligible bachelors had best look out, now that the "spinster lady" is coming into her own, they may have "the question" put to them any day.

Christmas day is over with its hours of joy, pleasant surprises, happy children, generous giving, with also its fond and sad memories, thoughts glad and consoling and thoughts sympathetic and far reachings. Over all, in whatever degree, however, there is the glamour of the old story, ever new, and the song in the heart wishing for the complete happiness of all for this last week of 1915 and for the whole of the New Year.

The tumult and the shouting heard, the shoppers and the bargain hunters departed—and the tired-out salesgirls and salesmen went to their homes last Saturday night glad that Christmas had come for them at last. The eleventh-hour rush of belated Christmas purchasers filled all of the stores. It was an impatient crowd—hurried, late shoppers always are, and the final hour's work on both sides of the counters tried everybody's nerves.

There are always hundreds of persons who habitually procrastinate in their Christmas shopping, or who receive unexpected presents on the day before Christmas demanding reciprocal gifts, the various store managers said, and it is such that make the last day before Christmas such a heavy one for merchants and their employes. In some stores it was said that the late shoppers were fewer than last year, and the managers on such places were moved to express the belief that the long-continued "Shop Early" campaign had begun to show results. By advertising early, many merchants tried to encourage this campaign, and their efforts seemed to have met with reasonable success.

Lancaster should not be content to be merely "no worse," or "just as good" as the average town. What its people now demand, and what it must accomplish, is that it be better than other towns—better in its morals, better in its standards of trade and commerce, better in its health requirements and conditions, better in its average of the mentally and physically sick and infirm, better in its watchfulness over the child life of the community. Better in its regulation of the public places of entertainment and amusement, than other towns. No growth, no profits, no success of any nature, which do not rest fundamentally upon truth, honesty and a wholesome regard for the rights and welfare of one's fellowmen can bring permanent benefits to an individual, or a community of individuals.

AFTER HOLIDAYS.

I find I have a lot of nice presents, such as toys, chinaware, presents and useful articles that I will sell at cost rather than to carry over. Great bargains. Come at once.

DR. AMON RECEIVES HONOR.

Gov. A. O. Stanley has appointed Dr. J. A. Amon a trustee of State University. While Dr. Amon is a staunch Republican yet he is a good friend of Gov. Stanley's and as this office is non-partisan we are glad our friend received it and consider it most worthy bestowed.

IKE MYERS FARM SELLS.

The farm owned by the late I. M. Myers and sold by the Master Commissioner, W. H. Brown last Thursday was bought in for the heirs by Miss Sally Lou Myers, $75.00 an acre. The farm contains about 144 acres and good judges of land pronounce it well worth this money.

SOME HOG.

Mr. Dan East, of this county seems to hold the record for the largest hog that was killed this fall. This porker was of the Poland China breed and tipped the scales at 810 pounds. Some hog.

CATTLE SALE.

Mr. W. R. Cook weighed up sixty-five head of fat cattle last Friday to Mr. Henry Caywood that averaged about 1400 pounds. This was one of the best bunches of cattle in the country and the price paid was $7.40 a hundred.

QUITE SICK.

Mr. J. R. Haselden has been confined to his home on Richmond street for several days with an acute attack of rheumatism. Mr. Haselden is one of our most popular business men and his friends are hopeful for his speedy recovery.

WEEK OF PRAYER.

Beginning next Sunday night at the Presbyterian church a week of prayer will be observed. The meetings will be held at the different churches throughout the city alternating each night. Full announcements and place of meeting will be given out next Sunday night.

POST OFFICE FORCE BUSY.

Postmaster Ephraim P. Brown and his force of competent assistants caught it good and hard during the Christmas rush of last week, the mails being almost double that of the same time last year. Even with the heavy rush every mail went out on time and the most courteous and painstaking treatment was accorded every patron. Lancaster has one of the best postmasters in the state and his assistants could not be improved upon.

CUTTING AFFRAY.

Jim Hood, our local colored carpenter, was badly though not seriously cut by Will Leavell, also colored, last Friday night in front of the store of Dan Bogie's. It seems that Leavell who was said to have been drinking, fell over a wheel barrow that had been left in front of the store by Hood and immediately accosted him for his negligence. Leavell drew a knife and made a few passes at Hood cutting him on the hand, cheek, head and back. Hood threw several rocks but did no damage to Leavell, who was arrested and is now in jail awaiting a bondsman.

RICHMOND MARKET GOOD.

Mr. J. B. Walker, of Richmond, who is interested in the Madison Tobacco Warehouse, of that city, was here last Monday, putting in some good boasts and telling the people of this county where to take their tobacco to realize the highest prices. Richmond has always been one of the best markets in the state and with the start she is making this year it looks as if she will break all former records.

The advertisement of this house appears in every issue of this paper and tells of some fabulous prices that have been made there this season. Read it.

LODGES ELECT OFFICERS.

Last Monday was the regular election night for the officers of Odd Fellows and Masonic lodges and each lodge was well attended and much interest manifested. The following Odd Fellows were elected: F. J. Gosney, N. G.; T. M. Arnold Jr., V. G.; W. H. Cox, Sec'y; J. H. Dalton, Treasurer; L. E. Heron, D. C. Sanders, B. C. Ford, Trustees.

The officers of the Masonic lodge elected were: Horace Herndon, Master; A. D. Joseph, S. W.; John Gill Kinnaird, J. W.; J. A. Beazley, S. D.; H. Clay Kauffman, J. D.; A. T. Anderson, Tyler; W. O. Rigney, Treas.; W. S. Hopper, Secretary. After the election, an oyster supper was given the members, at the Puritan, by Master elect, Horace Herndon.

ENGLISH PHEASANTS.

Reports of the state game warden show that the English ring-necked pheasants distributed among the 120 counties of Kentucky have more than doubled within the year. Only one brood is reported in Fayette county, but in some of the counties the increase goes as high as a hundred little ring necks. Twenty-five hundred were imported by the commission and the count shows 6,141 now, with a large number more probably in the cover.

These beautiful birds are protected by game laws and a closed season will be maintained until the state is well populated with them.

The pheasant, like the domestic fowl which it so much resembles, is an omnivorous feeder; grain, burage, roots, berries and other small fruits, insects, ants, worms, acorns, mast, shoots of grass are acceptable to it, varying with the season of the year. They eagerly devour the spangles of the oak. These galls are caused by the presence of the eggs of a gall fly. The perfect insect makes its appearance in the spring.

Most of the up-to-date farmers in Garrard county are putting their land and protecting not only pheasants but quail as well. A closed season must be maintained if our county is ever populated with game.

MADISON GIRL

MAKES A SUCCESS.

The first term of Walker School closed successfully Friday under the supervision of Miss Ida Mae Galey, a graduate of Eastern Kentucky State Normal School. Miss Galey has proven by the work accomplished that she is thoroughly qualified and possesses a sweet gentle way of imparting knowledge to others. Teachers of her type are few and far between and we trust she will teach for them more than one year.

ED. WALTON OUT

OF HARNESS.

It is with deep regret that we have learned that E. C. Walton will sever his connection with the Interior Journal on January 1st, he having sold his interest to his partner Shelton M. Sandley. While the partnership, we understand, has been entirely congenial, Mr. Walton prefers to go it single handed and he is now negotiating for the purchase of another plant in Central Kentucky. Here's hoping Ed, that you will soon be back in the harness.

KENTUCKY EDITORS

MET IN LEXINGTON.

Editors of Kentucky newspapers met in Lexington for their regular mid-winter meeting to discuss the ways and wherefores of journalism.

Local journalists and speakers had a prominent part on the program, while visiting newspaper men discussed questions pertinent to the craft during the two day's session of the scribes in Lexington. During their visit in the city the editors and attendants were the guests of the Lexington Board of Commerce and the Lexington newspapers. The meetings were held in the ball room of the Phoenix Hotel.

Secretary Quarles, of the Board of Commerce, had charge of the arrangement of the program. After the invocation by the Rev. Mark Collis, of the Broadway Christian Church, Mr. Quarles formally welcomed the quill pushers to the city.

The response was made by James B. Stears, president of the Kentucky Press Association.

Monday evening the editors were the guests of the Board of Commerce at Ben Ali Theater.

An exhibit of old Kentucky newspapers was prepared for the members of the Kentucky Press Association who attended the meeting and was open to them at the Lexington Public Library throughout the week. This exhibit was very unique.

A splendid dinner was given this hungry horde as the "grand finale" at the Phoenix Hotel Tuesday night and all left loud in their praise of Lexington and the Board Of Commerce.

LEXINGTON HERALD MAIL

LIST ON A STRICTLY CASH BASIS.

The Lexington Herald has announced its usual first of January offer of $5.00 paid in advance mail subscription rate. This is open to old and new subscribers alike and means a saving of at least $1.00 per year. The Herald has placed its list on a purely cash in advance basis and discontinues on the first and fifteenth of each month all subscribers not paid up to or in advance of those dates. It has, therefore, notified all of those whose subscriptions expire during the first part of January of their exact date of expiration and asked for an early remittance so that its subscribers may not miss a single copy of the paper.

50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR

Probably All That L. L. Sanders, Bankrupt, Will Pay Out.

Referee in Bankruptcy Nelson D. Rhodes, of Danville, held a meeting of the creditors of L. L. Sanders, bankrupt of Crab Orchard, here Thursday afternoon. Mr. Rhodes appointed Messrs J. Thomas Cherry, S. J. Tatem and Will Pettus as appraisers of Mr. Sanders goods in his store at Crab Orchard. The schedule of the assets and liabilities as made out by Mr. Sanders and filed with the referee show that he owes the sum of $9,145.77, and that his assets are estimated at $7,861.99. Men familiar with his affairs, say, however, that the bankrupt will do exceedingly well if he pays out 50 cents on the dollar. Too heavy buying is said to have been the principal cause of the trouble in which Mr. Sanders became involved. Most of the creditors are wholesale houses in the cities. One of the largest in this section is the Cumberland Grocery Company of Junction City, which he owes $400. Referee Rhodes will appoint a trustee in a few days to take charge of the property and dispose of to the best advantage. —Interior Journal.
